tributed than the natives of the country, for they are free from the supervision of the officials of the various departments under which all Siamese are ranged, and have only a triennial tax of 10*...*, while Siamese is obliged to work for the Khao for a period varying from one to three months a year, or to pay a sum varying from 15*...* to 25*...* annually in commutation. On the other hand, however, in a country where the natives themselves always look up to some superior for protection, the Chhinan, when not a foreign subject, has no one whose good offices he can claim." It is thus very evident that it is the duty of the Chinese Government to send a Consul to Siam to watch over the interests of the numerous Chinese residents in that kingdom. It is probably partly through the neglect of their own Government to take care of them that so many of the Straits Chinese have become British subjects. This means they secure the powerful protection of the British flag when they establish themselves as merchants in Siam, Burmah, and other parts. The Siamese Government is seemingly anxious to encourage them and treats them literally as good enough, but it cannot be doubted that they are sometimes placed at a disadvantage in not having any one to appeal to for advice and assistance. The Government of Peking has at length recognised the necessity of sending Consuls to various countries, and it may be hoped that it will, in the interests of the people, and for its own enlightenment in matters transpiring outside the limits of the Central Kingdom, lose no little time as possible in despatching them to their several destinations. TIENTSIN.

Nov. 23rd November.

The remains of the late Hon. B. F. Avery were transferred this afternoon from the U. S. Consulate to the U. S. steamer Monocacy, which was to take them to Hongkong. The coffin, formed in front of the Consulate at three o'clock. The coffin, covered with the national flag, was wheeled on two gun carriages sent from the Monocacy, and drawn by a company of twelve sailors. The Monocacy was a small gun vessel, consisting of 80 men preceded the big ships with several anchors. At the right of the coffin were members of the Consular staff and two American sailors. Behind the coffin were some members of the merchant fleet in port, who acted as bearers. Following the remains were the British Minister, Mr. Wade, Mr. Holcomb, the U. S. Secretary of Legation, and the British Consul, Mr. S. S. Morrison, Mr. J. H. Pehlik, as mourners. Then came other naval officers, the American and other foreign residents.

While the procession was forming, the U. S. Consular flag was run up to the top of the steeple just preceding the order to march; it was dropped to half-mast, and at the same moment a gun salute commenced firing. The Monocacy and the British ships fired the regular salute of nineteen guns due to the rank of the lamented Minister had been fired. Mr. Avery accompanied the remains of her husband, and goes to Hongkong to reside.

Companies from the English, Russian, and French gunboats, drawn up by the bank, saluted the remains as they passed by, presenting arms.

A goodly number of the foreign residents of Tientsin were in attendance. Altogether, rather an imposing spectacle was presented to the interested gaze of the Chinese crowd which gathered to witness the procession.

The departure of the Monocacy leaves only two defenders during the winter. H. M. gunboat Groveler, Russian gunboat Morge, and French gunboat Albatros.

The last two gunboats have been very cold, and there is some floating ice in the river.—N. C. Daily News Correspondent.

BOMBAY, November 14, 1899. The Prince of Wales, at 4.40 p.m., left the Victoria Station for the afternoon, accompanied by the Viceroy and suite. A Naval procession by the Admiralty's Royal Barge, headed by Admirals and Captains, accompanied the Prince. Thundering salutes were fired from the squadrons and shore Batteries. All ships were dressed and men-of-war were manned, forming a grand fleet. The Prince, accompanied by the Viceroy and suite, was met by the Governor of Bombay, Chief Justice, Commander-in-Chief of the Bombay Presidency, and other High Officials, and upon the arrival of the Prince at the Victoria Station, magnificently decorated and glitteringly costumed. The address of welcome from the Municipality was read. The Prince of Wales, in reply, made a most courteous and friendly speech, and in answer to the presentation of a valuable memento, replied, "I am very glad to accept it, and I am glad to be in Bombay, and I am glad to be in India, and I am glad to be in the Empire." The Prince then, accompanied by the Viceroy and suite, proceeded to the Governor's Palace, where he was met by the Governor and the members of the Council of the Government of India. To observe the familiar forms of many sequences bedecked almost out of recognition with some of the most elaborate and preternatural gravity and mysterious countenance. This orderly and dignified spectacle was touched to the spectators—far on to the sides of the aisle—by the presence of friends on the other—for a short time, because of the exigencies of the ceremony—more because of the self-absorbed earnestness of the host, who had been seated around the stone before occupied, and a file of masons on each hand, shielded up and down, the Prince's staff being also present. The ceremony was so simple that it became embryonic at first in the spectators' minds, and then, as the ceremony proceeded, except a few, a little behind. For these, the rather intricate but beautiful ceremonies could mean anything but a dumb show. The ceremony was a simple, dignified and touching of the D. G. Chaplain's beautiful

STEALING PLANE.

Charles Adams, a colloid, was charged by District Attorney, with the unlawful possession of a quantity of plinking steel from Sam Abbe on the Pryma West. The watchman of the prisoner in Cnp started early this morning, when he entered the house, and the prisoner admitted he had been in jail on several occasions for larceny, and he was this time sentenced for four months' hard labour.

Mo Ashing, a boat builder, was charged by Meigs Abbe (P. O. No. 419) with gambling. The prisoner was one of four caught gambling in the city, and he was sentenced, and another in disgrace, the prisoner was one of many who called out to beat the police. The prisoner, who denied the charge, was

The Prince goes to board the Scorpio this morning, but remains in the Harbour until the future course is decided. He wishes to leave the meantime to proceed to Borneo for thirty days, but the Government has decided to let the Governor's Ball nullify the Prince's intention.

ROMNEY, November 10.
On the fatigue of S.R.H. the Prince of Wales left the city at 11.30 a.m. for the coast, accompanied by the procession through the town to Palet in for the evening there was a pretty numerous attended reception at Government House, a large number of the nobility and gentry, and some of the nobles, chiefly officials, were presented to His Highness. soon dead, disturbed by robbers of late. A week or so ago a very daring robbery was committed upon a gang of desperadoes, and a fight ensued, in which the latter were all slain, save one of whom, if we may be pardoned the liberty, turned out to be a woman. They were immediately secured in the Chu-show's yamen, and the following day the chief magistrate was informed by that officer that so many robbers, supposed to be connected with a large and dangerous body of outlaws, were being held in the Chu-show's yamen, that he had ordered the Chu-show to cut off all their heads at once, and the prisoners were prepared for execution upon the following morning. On the afternoon, however, of the day on which Governor Kwei was to have been executed, a messenger from the military governor, entered the city, made his way to the military prison, broke it open and rescued all the prisoners. The unfortunate man who was pardoned, was the same man who was pardoned in the case of the men; the Chu-fu of Yenchow came hustling to the place when everything was over, and the robbers had cleared out, and had slain the Chu-show. The matter over came since.

 presence, however, did not prevent the political Prince to-morrow.

Having visited the Seraglio this afternoon, the Prince and party landed in the evening amidst the most brilliant illuminations. The Prince, wearing the uniform of the 10th Hussars, then traversed in procession the leading thoroughfares of the grand and malivorous city, and was received by the great, especially the heads of the Public Offices. The reception was more cordial than ever, the utmost enthusiasm prevailing. The whole route was brilliantly illuminated, the streets at intervals being well covered with muskets. The Prince was highly pleased with the reception and the magnificence of the illuminations.

 The Prince's presents to the Bazar of Alvor

Mygent thou, O Prince, how length of time, and

 And how thy ill-built, ungracious, or fear-fil'd
 O Prince, how long thou art, how long thou art
 And long may'st thy enjoy happiness from family wealth and may'st thou delight in thing good O Prince, how long thou art, how long thou art

IN SHIKHA METRE.
 Fair convey, O Prince, unto my august Mother,
 How long thy subjects rest, how long thy reign Informations all of things, of all things Nothing allow to remain unknown to her;
 Certes we, her subjects, give thee respect
 O Prince, how long thou art, how long thou art
 Over the wide land thy good subjects earnestly pray
 For the stability and prosperity of Her Majesty's state Wealth and sufficiency may be duly restored;
 O Prince, how long thou art, how long thou art
 Like a cloud we are not to be trusted;
 Ever may the crown sit on her provident protection
 O Prince, how long thou art, how long thou art
 About a corner-stone are the Prince's prayers And, and the whole's amoultage of children commenced to shout at the top of their voices until the Hightness had disappeared from view
